38  Saving Violetta
by Brian Kellow
Redemption turns up frequently in Verdi’s operas. But the composer never explored the theme as deeply or as personally as he did in La Traviata.

42  Flower Girls
by Christopher Hunt
Violetta, Marguerite, Camille, and Julia Roberts’ Pretty Woman all stem from the same source: the 19th-century Parisian courtesan Marie Duplessis.

“City National helps keep my financial life in tune.”

So much of my life is always shifting; a different city, a different piece of music, a different ensemble. I need people who I can count on to help keep my financial life on course so I can focus on creating and sharing the “adventures” of classical music. City National shares my passion and is instrumental in helping me bring classical music to audiences all over the world. They enjoy being a part of what I do and love. That is the essence of a successful relationship.

City National is The way up® for me.

On behalf of the Board of Directors of San Francisco Opera, welcome to our 95th season!

From ancient mythology to California history, we embark in September on nine powerful journeys that celebrate the stories of humanity. We believe you will find this to be a season of tremendously diverse, ambitious, and emotionally thrilling offerings on the War Memorial Opera House stage. From sumptuous revivals of Turandot and La Traviata, to connoisseur dreams like Elektra and Manon, to one of the most highly anticipated cultural events of the year in the world premiere of John Adams’ Girls of the Golden West, this will be a fall to remember.

The extraordinary artistic capability of this great Company is made possible by you, our audience. We are deeply grateful to all our patrons, subscribers, and donors. You are one of the most passionate and engaged audiences in the world, and your commitment and enthusiasm sustain San Francisco Opera. Thank you for your incredible support.

We wish to extend special recognition to our Company sponsors, who provide the major underwriting that makes everything we do possible: the Dolby family, Bertie Bialek Elliott, Ann and Gordon Getty, Burgess and Elizabeth Jamieson, Mr. and Mrs. Franklin P. Johnson, Jr., the Edmund W. and Jeannik Méquet Littlefield Fund, Steven M. Menzies, Bernard and Barbro Osher, Jan Shrem and Maria Manetti Shrem, Diane and Tad Taube, the Phyllis C. Wattis Endowment Funds, Diane B. Wilsey, and Barbara A. Wolfe. We also give special thanks to our Season Sponsor, Wells Fargo; our Corporate Partners, Chevron and United Airlines; and our Official Wine Sponsor, HALL Wines.

We also salute the artistry of Music Director Nicola Luisotti, who concludes nearly a decade of leadership at the end of the season. Nicola’s contributions to the quality of our orchestra and the Company’s overall musical values are exceptional, and San Francisco Opera audiences will enjoy the legacy of his work for years to come. We will never forget the countless electrifying performances he has led in our theater, and we look forward to welcoming him back to the podium in future seasons.

Enjoy the opera and revel in the music that moves the city!

AWAKING BEAUTY
THE ART OF Eyvind Earle
MAY 18—JAN 8

Immerse yourself in the lush landscapes and enchanting illustrations of Eyvind Earle.

Featuring more than 250 works, this exhibition features concept paintings for Sleeping Beauty and Lady and the Tramp, as well as Earle’s dynamic personal work. Earle’s distinctive style and interpretation of iconic American landscapes as a fine artist and printmaker have inspired generations of artists and designers.
Grab your shovels and stake your claims! With the eyes and ears of the music world trained on San Francisco Opera for the highly anticipated world premiere of John Adams’ Girls of the Golden West on November 21, local history buffs and opera fans will get a leg up on the excitement.

On Saturday, October 28, the Girls of the Golden West Symposium will be held in the Dianne and Tad Taube Atrium Theater at the Diane B. Wilsey Center for Opera. The all-day event will dig into the opera’s themes, source materials, and its place within the broader context of the Gold Rush. Designed to prepare audiences for the opera and provide insightful perspectives into this critical period of California history, the symposium will be a multidisciplinary presentation of lectures, conversations, and music, including a discussion with composer John Adams (Nixon in China and Doctor Atomic) and librettist/director Peter Sellars. Authors, historians, and other Gold Rush authorities will explore topics such as “Women in the Gold Rush” and “Cultural Conflict.” Rounding out the event, a set of miner and pioneer songs will be performed in period style by Theatre Comique. Tickets for the event are $45.

Many Girls of the Golden West ancillary activities will be offered in collaboration with cultural and educational institutions around the Bay Area. Public exhibitions at Wells Fargo, Levi Strauss & Co., and the Society of California Pioneers provide an excellent opportunity to learn more about the history of California. Gold Rush-era artifacts from the collections of the California Historical Society, Society of California Pioneers, Levi Strauss & Co., and Museum of Performance + Design will also be on view within the Opera House lobby from November through December. In a special collaboration with the San Francisco Public Library, The Shirley Letters—one of the key historical sources Adams and Sellars drew upon for the opera—will be the Library’s fall book club selection.

For tickets to the Girls of the Golden West Symposium and more information, please visit: sfoisopacom.
Interactive Adult Opera Workshops Return

Education Department adds to its fall offerings with Drinks & Drama

Back by popular demand, the Overture Workshops for Adults, a first-hand look at how opera is created and produced for the stage, will take place from Monday, September 25 through Monday, October 23. This fall’s series will focus on the four main pillars of opera creation—story, music, production, and direction—with featured guests including Dramaturg Kip Cranna, Opera Center Director Sheri Greenawald, Properties Master Lori Harrison, stage director Jose Maria Condemí, and artists and musicians from across the Company. Learn more at sfopera.com/overtureseries.

Also for the opera-curious: join the Education Department on Friday, October 20 from 7 to 8:30 p.m. for Drinks & Drama: A Taste of the Season, a social-educational event featuring special live performances and mini-cocktails tailored to pair with each opera. Photographs, musical excerpts, and video clips from the San Francisco Opera Archives will immerse you in the fall 2017 season. Learn more at sfopera.com/drinksanddrama.

Lianna Haroutounian
In Recital

Armenian soprano Lianna Haroutounian will give her San Francisco recital debut on Saturday, November 25 at 3 p.m. in the Veterans Building’s Herbst Theatre. The acclaimed opera star, who made a sensational San Francisco Opera debut in Tosca in 2014 and returned triumphantly last season in the title role of Madama Butterfly, will return for her only Bay Area appearance in a program of works by Tchaikovsky, Rachmaninoff, Komitas, Rossini, Bellini, and Puccini, as well as Armenian folk songs. Georgian pianist Tamara Sanikidze will provide musical accompaniment. For tickets, call City Box Office at (415) 392-4400.

Special Concerts
This Fall

The San Francisco Opera Chorus will offer a public concert of sacred, secular, and operatic music on Thursday, November 30 at 8 p.m., in the intimate Taube Atrium Theater of the Wilsey Center for Opera. Under the baton of Chorus Director Ian Robertson and Associate Chorus Master and pianist Fabrizio Corona, the 47-member chorus will take center stage in musical offerings by Bach, di Lasso, Elgar, Ešenvalds, Massenet, O’Regan, Poulenc, Praetorius, Puccini, Purcell, Verdi, and Wagner. Tickets are $35 and available now at the San Francisco Opera Box Office or by visiting sfopera.com.

Making their West Coast concert debut, the popular New Zealand trio Sol3 Mio will take to the War Memorial Opera House stage on Friday, December 1 at 7:30 p.m. for a special holiday concert, Kiwi-style. This exclusive San Francisco Opera presentation of Samoan brothers and Adler Fellow tenors Pene Pati and Amitai Pati and their baritone Samoan cousin Moses Mackay will feature the singers in a concert of holiday favorites, operatic works, crossover hits, and cherished songs from the South Pacific. Robert Mollick will conduct the San Francisco Opera Orchestra.

To learn more about Sol3 Mio and to hear excerpts, visit Sol3Mio.com. Tickets range from $20 to $100 and are available at the San Francisco Opera Box Office or by visiting sfopera.com.
One of the most serene yet foreboding moments in all of opera happens during the prelude to Richard Wagner’s Das Rheingold. Eight basses quietly sustain a single low E-flat for four measures. One of the basses you will hear in the orchestra pit during next summer’s Ring cycle will be the 1843 Plumerel played by Shinji Eshima, who joined the Company in 1980. “The basses start on that note,” he explains, “and the rest of the orchestra gradually gets layered in with E-flat arpeggios.” The bassists play E-flat for 136 measures before a Rhinemaiden suddenly begins to sing. Wagner’s swirling setting expresses the depth and building flow of the Rhine River, creeping into your consciousness and opening Wagner’s epic musical journey. About this prelude, Shinji says, “I associate E-flat with nature. … Maestro Runnicles [who leads the Company’s Ring in 2018] has said that he loves E-flat in particular because it makes the orchestra ‘feel good.’ I’ll never forget him saying that.”

Shinji’s wife, Sandy, is a former dancer for NYCB, and because she currently stages Balanchine’s ballets, she has access to NYCB’s original videos. Shinji says that “virtually anything I hear with a bass on these recordings [from Agon to Jewels] is this bass.”

A Japanese-American born in Berkeley, Shinji received his education at Stanford and Juilliard. Today, he is a faculty member at the San Francisco Conservatory of Music and San Francisco State University.

When Shinji is not performing or teaching, he is composing. Last year, he collaborated with poet Scott Bourne on a chamber piece called Bourne to Shelley, which had its world premiere at SF Opera Lab’s ChamberWORKS. San Francisco Ballet commissioned him to create music for two ballets, RAKU (2011) and Swimmer (2015). The puppetry play E.O. 9066, featuring original music by Shinji, was recently performed at the opening of the Topaz Museum, dedicated to preserving the history of the World War II internment camp experience in Delta, Utah. The play’s title derives from the Executive Order 9066, which forced 120,000 people of Japanese ancestry to leave their homes and transfer to internment camps. 11,000 of them were sent to Topaz, including Shinji’s father. The theme from E.O. 9066 is a variation of a work Shinji composed originally for violin and double bass called August 6, which premiered at Grace Cathedral on the 50th anniversary of the Hiroshima bombing. Shinji later decided to orchestrate August 6 for SF Ballet’s RAKU.

A documentary of RAKU will have its world premiere screening as part of the San Francisco Dance Film Festival on October 20 at the Brava Theater Center. As a musician in the orchestra pit, composer, and teacher, Shinji Eshima demonstrates that music is deep with history and rich with storytelling.

Introducing

Evelyn Herlitzius

For next summer’s revival of Richard Wagner’s epic Der Ring des Nibelungen (The Ring of the Nibelung), San Francisco Opera has assembled an exceptional cast of singers, several of whom will be performing with the Company for the first time. They include American tenor Daniel Brenna as Siegfried, German bass-baritone Falk Struckmann as Alberich, and German dramatic soprano Evelyn Herlitzius as Brünnhilde.

Applauded in European opera houses for her gripping portrayals (the U.K.’s Telegraph hailed her Elektra as “a creature of mesmerizing intensity”), Herlitzius looks forward to her first performances in this country. Trained in dance, she says that she never dreamed in her youth that someday she would be a professional singer, much less an opera star. “I took singing lessons only because I thought that it might somehow become helpful to get a [dancing] job somewhere,” says Herlitzius. “But as life is, things changed, and singing and opera became more and more fascinating to me.”

She says that Brünnhilde involved the same kind of serendipity. Five years after starting her opera career, Herlitzius received a call from an old university friend who was a conductor at a smaller German opera house. Could she imagine herself singing one of the most challenging roles in the repertoire? “I told him yes, immediately. It was just a matter of instinct, not of knowledge,” she says. “Now, after all those wonderful years with this role accompanying my life, I would say that the greatest challenge contains also the greatest reward: to be able to portray such a complex character on stage and her development from a teenage girl who knows nothing to a mature woman, able to forgive.”

For the Ring is a microcosm of humanity, says Herlitzius, and for that reason it can be adapted into vastly different settings and time periods—including the Company’s production, directed by Francesca Zambello, which incorporates imagery from various eras of American history.

Beyond Brünnhilde, does Herlitzius have any other plans in San Francisco? “The Pacific Ocean and, after the run, exploring Route 66 on a Harley-Davidson with my partner,” she says.
San Francisco Opera’s 95th season opened on September 8, 2017 with a sold-out performance of David Hockney’s production of Puccini’s Turandot. To reflect the occasion, this year’s Opera Ball, co-chaired by Courtney Labe and Maryam Muduroglu, was a lavish evening of Chinese-inspired décor and majesty, designed by J. Riccardo Benuvides. Proceeds from this signature fundraiser benefit the San Francisco Opera Association and Opera Guild’s education and community programs reaching more than 60,000 young people and families. Also on opening night, San Francisco Opera Music Director Nicola Luisotti was the recipient of the Opera Medal for his distinguished service with the Company.
San Francisco Opera’s season-opening festivities included the 44th annual San Francisco Chronicle Presents San Francisco Opera in the Park, featuring Music Director Nicola Luisotti conducting the San Francisco Opera Orchestra. Among the singers of the fall season performing at Opera in the Park were sopranos Aurelia Florian and Toni Marie Palmertree; tenors Atalla Ayan, Brian Jagde and Pene Pati; and bass-baritone Alfred Walker.

Opera in the Park 2017

San Francisco Opera’s BRAVO! Club Opening Night Gala, led by co-chairs Alex Petalas and Victoria Weatherford, began with a champagne reception on the War Memorial Opera House Loggia. Following the performance of Turandot, guests enjoyed an opulent after-party in the Veterans Building Green Room.

#LiveGloriously
The art of performance draws our eyes to the stage

Our community’s commitment to arts and culture says a lot about where we live. Opera brings us together from the moment the lights go down and the curtains come up.

We’re proud to sponsor the San Francisco Opera.
Through myth we find humanity

Witness this timeless tale unfold in San Francisco Opera’s spectacular production directed by Francesca Zambello. Acclaimed Wagnerian conductor Donald Runnicles leads an extraordinary international cast featuring Evelyn Herlitzius (Brünnhilde), Greer Grimsley (Wotan), Daniel Brenna (Siegfried), Karita Mattila (Sieglinde), Brandon Jovanovich (Siegmund) and Falk Struckmann (Alberich).

Once again, the unprecedented generosity of Cynthia and John Gunn has set the stage for a dazzling season at San Francisco Opera. Since 2002, when John joined the Opera Board, the couple has underwritten numerous productions and provided exceptional support for many of the Company’s innovative endeavors.

In September 2008, the Gunns made a historic commitment—believed to be the largest gift ever made by individuals to an American opera company—to help fund the signature projects of then-General Director David Gockley, including new operas and productions, multimedia projects, and outreach programs. This season, the Gunns’ inspired generosity is helping make possible five productions—Turandot, Elektra, Manon, Girls of the Golden West, and the Ring cycle.

John shared his considerable insights at the 2014 conference of OPERA America, the national service organization for opera. As he told attendees, “Opera is a dynamic art form and all of us play a role in keeping it vital. We must expand our repertoire and our audiences, and strive for financial flexibility. And we depend on donors to keep opera alive.”

John is the former chairman and CEO of Dodge & Cox Investment Managers. He joined the firm in 1972, the year he received his MBA from Stanford Business School and married Cynthia, who graduated from Stanford with an A.B. in political science in 1970. Early in her career, Cynthia was the editor and director of The Portable Stanford book series for ten years. She edited twenty-eight books by Stanford professors on a vast array of topics, including Economic Policy Beyond the Headlines by George Shultz and Ken Dam.

In addition to their support of San Francisco Opera, the Gunns are active members of the community. John is the chair of the advisory board for the Stanford Institute for Economic Policy Research (SIEPR), serves as a trustee of Stanford University, and is Vice Chairman of the board of Stanford Hospital Care. Cynthia is an overseer of Stanford’s Hoover Institution, a member of the advisory board of Family and Children Services, and serves on the boards of the Lucile Packard Foundation for Children’s Health and the San Francisco Fine Arts Museums.

Opera lovers are grateful to Cynthia and John, and applaud their commitment to keeping San Francisco Opera a leading-edge company.
Jan Shrem and Maria Manetti Shrem/Conductors Fund, Great Interpreters of Italian Opera Fund, and Emerging Stars Fund (Sponsor, Maestro Luisotti, Aurelia Florian, Atalla Ayan)

After a career devoted to his publishing businesses in Japan and Europe, the creation of Clos Pegase Winery in California’s Napa Valley, and his art collection, Jan Shrem, in joyous partnership with his wife Maria Manetti Shrem, is bringing his focus and affection to philanthropic causes that advance education and the performing and visual arts. Though they grew up half-a-world apart, Jan and Maria both developed a love of opera at a young age. While their lives led them each around the globe, their individual passions eventually led them to San Francisco Opera, and to each other. With a substantial multi-year commitment, Company Sponsors Jan and Maria have expanded their support with the establishment of three different funds. The Conductors Fund helps ensure the continued appearances of Maestro Nicola Luisotti and other Italian conductors in the orchestra pit. The Great Interpreters of Italian Opera Fund helps bring today’s most compelling artists in Italian repertoire to San Francisco Opera, and the Emerging Stars Fund supports the Company in showcasing several exciting rising young stars on our stage throughout the season.

Chevron (Production Sponsor, La Traviata)

Throughout its long history with San Francisco Opera, Chevron has generously supported many of the company’s artistic productions and community outreach initiatives. Continuing this tradition this season, Chevron is the corporate Production Sponsor of La Traviata. Chevron has a proud history of serving its customers and communities in the Bay Area. Chevron’s philosophy of investing in community institutions encourages a culture of artistic achievement and growth, which strengthens the communities in which we live and work. San Francisco Opera is grateful to Chevron for its generous support.

ACT I

A party is taking place at the home of Violetta Valéry, a beautiful Parisian courtesan. Gastone arrives and presents his friend, Alfredo Germont, telling Violetta that Alfredo has long been a silent admirer and had even called daily during her illness to ask about her. Baron Douphol, one of Violetta’s “protectors,” is angered by the conversation and refuses to propose a toast when invited to by Gastone. Alfredo then accepts the invitation and sings an impassioned tribute to beauty and love. Later, as the others go to another room to dance, Violetta is overcome by a fainting spell. Alfredo joyously accepts and bids her goodnight. When her guests have gone, Violetta thoughtfully muses on Alfredo’s proffered love, but finally returns to her true character and declares that she must remain forever free to pass from pleasure to pleasure.

Scène 1: Months later, having ultimately accepted Alfredo’s offer, Violetta is living with Alfredo in the country and has abandoned her life of ease and luxury. Annina, Violetta’s maid and confidante, enters and tells Alfredo she has been sent to arrange the sale of Violetta’s property, which must be sold to pay their debts. Alfredo suddenly understands the sacrifices that Violetta has made in order to live with him and leaves for Paris, determined not to be shamed by her sacrifice. Violetta receives an unexpected visitor, Giorgio Germont, Alfredo’s father, who declares that he who is unlucky in love is lucky at cards. The Baron, incensed at Alfredo’s insolence, challenges him to play. Alfredo accepts and beats the Baron repeatedly at high stakes. When all the others go to dinner, Violetta remains behind to entreat Alfredo to leave, lest the Baron challenge him to a duel. Alfredo answers that he will leave, but only if she accompanies him. Unwilling to reveal that she has broken off with him because of his father, Violetta declares that she is in love with the Baron. Frenzied with jealousy, Alfredo calls all the guests into the room and, in a rage, he throws money at Violetta’s feet and calls upon all to witness that he has paid her in full. Germont enters just in time to see Alfredo’s caddish behavior and joins the others in reviling him for his conduct. Alfredo, realizing the lengths to which his jealousy has carried him, is contrite but realizes that he is helpless to make amends. The Baron assures Alfredo that he must answer for the insult on the field of honor.

ACT II

Scène 2: Alfredo arrives at Flora’s house as the guests are beginning to gamble. Violetta arrives, escorted by Baron Douphol. Alfredo explains that he who is unlucky in love is lucky at cards. The Baron, enraged at Alfredo’s insolence, challenges him to play. Alfredo accepts and beats the Baron repeatedly at high stakes. When all the others go to dinner, Violetta remains behind to entreat Alfredo to leave, but only if she accompanies him. Unwilling to reveal that she has broken off with him because of his father, Violetta declares that she is in love with the Baron. Frenzied with jealousy, Alfredo calls all the guests into the room and, in a rage, he throws money at Violetta’s feet and calls upon all to witness that he has paid her in full. Germont enters just in time to see Alfredo’s caddish behavior and joins the others in reviling him for his conduct. Alfredo, realizing the lengths to which his jealousy has carried him, is contrite but realizes that he is helpless to make amends. The Baron assures Alfredo that he must answer for the insult on the field of honor.

ACT III

Violetta’s illness has brought her to the point of death. Her physician, Dr. Grenvil, calls at her home, examines her, and tells Annina that she has but a few hours to live. Violetta reads a letter from the elder Germont, in which she learns that Alfredo has gone abroad after wounding the Baron in a duel. He knows now of the great sacrifice that Violetta has made and is returning to beg her forgiveness. Alfredo returns and the two are reunited at last. But it is too late. Violetta, comforted by the presence of the man whom she has so tragically loved, dies in his arms.

Many years ago, a friend of mine was divorced from her first husband. Eventually, he asked her if she would agree to have their marriage annulled by the Catholic Church, as he was planning to remarry. My friend was deeply hurt; even if their marriage had been ill-conceived, she hated the thought of having to go forward saying that it had never existed. To her surprise, her own mother angrily told her that she had no choice but to have the marriage annulled. “Otherwise,” her mother explained, “you are standing in the way of the future happiness of someone you don’t even know. And that is wrong.”

That decision to make a sacrifice for the greater good came back to me recently as I was thinking about La Traviata, whose stature as one of the world’s most treasured operas seems undiminished, 164 years after its world premiere at Venice’s La Fenice. La Traviata remains one of the works I never tire of. Despite its brilliance as a music drama, its ongoing popularity surprises me in a way, because I can’t help but feel that the idea that the entire opera turns on—personal redemption through self-sacrifice—is one that may not have much currency in our present social, cultural, and political climate—at least in the United States. We are living in a time where instant gratification is the force that compels most of us; driven on by the speedy advances of the technological revolution, our collective attention span is shrinking by the day, and we seem to be losing the patience to work our way through much of anything that’s too complicated. I would think that modern audiences—the ones I see texting throughout the performances—would not necessarily respond to the staggering choice that is foisted upon Violetta by her lover Alfredo’s father, Giorgio Germont.

I first saw La Traviata in the theater in 1983 at the Metropolitan Opera. Partly thanks to my own neophyte status as an opera-goer, I responded to it principally as a story of a woman dying of tuberculosis. As I studied it, its central theme of personal redemption became clear to me. Redemption is something that figures prominently in dozens of operas in the standard repertoire, from the Marschallin’s surrender of Octavian at the end of Richard Strauss’ Der Rosenkavalier to Blanche de la Force’s march to the guillotine at the climax of Poulenc’s Dialogues des Carmélites. It had long been a potent theme in scores of the world’s great novels, from Hawthorne’s The Scarlet Letter to Dickens’ A Tale of Two Cities, which features Sydney Carton’s immortal observation, “It is a far, far better thing that I do, than I have ever done; it is a far, far better rest that I go to than I have ever known.”

In these literary works, the idea of redemption is sometimes more implicit than literal. In Henry James’ The Turn of the Screw, the reader is invited to think that part of what drives the Governess to purge the evil presence from her young charges—whether or not it really exists—may be the need to redeem her own troubled past. And James’ Daisy Miller, who flaunts European social conventions without batting an eye, is offered a chance at redemption. When the fierce society matron Mrs. Walker sees Daisy walking openly in public with her Italian suitor, she offers the girl the refuge of her carriage, making it clear that it is a chance for her to save herself. Daisy refuses, continues her budding romance with the Italian—and dies of Roman fever as a result.

The theme of redemption turns up frequently in Verdi’s operas. But he never plumbed the theme as deeply or as personally as he did in La Traviata. Verdi was drawn to Alexandre Dumas’ play La Dame aux Camélias (in turn adapted from Dumas’ 1848 novel) as a source largely because he was aching to tackle a contemporary subject. Marie Duplessis, the stylish courtesan who was the real-life basis for Dumas’ heroine Marguerite Gautier and eventually for Verdi’s Violetta, was still much talked about in Parisian circles, having died only in February 1847. Verdi was entering his first great period of innovation as a musical dramatist, having recently dared to put a hunchback center stage in Rigoletto, and having made the Gypsy Azucena a centerpiece of Il Trovatore. Now he wanted to create a bracingly modern work for La Fenice, by making a woman of dubious reputation his heroine. Most of his biographers agree that probably he was equally driven to make a bold dramatic statement in response to the criticism he had suffered through his relationship with his mistress, the celebrated bel-canto soprano Giuseppina Strepponi, who already had given birth to several illegitimate children. Verdi was stung by the judgmental malice directed at him and Strepponi. This brand of Victorian-era hypocrisy was rampant at the time. For many upper-middle-class men, having a mistress was considered a badge of honor, while women were expected to submit to a kind of societal straitjacket.

The depth of Verdi’s Violetta marked an impressive step forward for him as a musical dramatist. Unfortunately, the electrifying modern production he dreamed of was not to be. When Traviata bowed at La Fenice in 1853, its setting was pushed back to the early 1700s—a distancing effect aimed at pacifying the censors. The cast was inadequate, and as opening night approached, Verdi feared that the production would turn out to be exactly what he later described it as being, a “fiasco.” A little over a year later, it was given another production, properly cast, at Venice’s Teatro San Benedetto, that was a success, making the composer feel (mostly) redeemed.
When we experience Traviata in the theater now, it behooves us to try to imagine how shocking it must have been for audiences when it bowed at La Fenice in 1853. For Verdi to have imbued his “fallen woman” (the approximate English translation of the title) with so much dignity, grace, and compassion was something revolutionary in mid-19th-century Italian opera. Some commentators have criticized Francesca Maria Piave’s libretto for making too abrupt a jump from Act One to Act Two; having grappled with whether or not to take a chance on love in her magnificent Act I soliloquy, “È strano ... Ah! fors’è lui ... sempre libera,” Violetta makes the decision to continue to seek pleasure for pleasure’s sake.

In the second act, we see that she has changed her mind and is living happily in the country with Alfredo. I think that it was a brilliant stroke on the part of Verdi and Piave not to have us witness any further indecision about pursuing a life with Alfredo. When Act Two begins, we are lulled into a false sense of security, which makes what comes next all the more powerful. Her subsequent confrontation with Alfredo’s father, Giorgio Germont, in which he insists that she abandon Alfredo for the sake of the family honor, remains a formidable challenge for a good singing actress: she must persuade us, as well as Germont, that she possesses the most enlightened sensibility, the greatest sense of empathy, of any other character onstage. Soprano Diana Soviero, who sang hundreds of performances of Traviata, recalls the power of the Violetta-Germont scene. “Often, I would stare at him for longer than I normally would,” she says. “And on the ‘ah’ before ‘Dite all giovine’ I would start positive and then become negative, and bring the sound back to me. I was saying, ‘All right—tell your daughter who is so pure and beautiful that I will do this for her. Because she is the girl I want so badly to be.’”

Violetta puts herself to the ultimate test, and her reward is to die of tuberculosis. Germont grasps her true worth only when she is on her deathbed. Unlike Daisy Miller, who also dies, she doesn’t have the satisfaction of getting her own way—but I think that’s why the end of James’ novel always seems vaguely unsatisfying; the death of a girl who does precisely what she wants simply doesn’t have the emotional resonance that Violetta’s death does.

Unfortunately, the ultimate message of Traviata still gets obscured on the stage, as some directors seek to make it more about a young woman who is dying, i.e., large ticking clocks onstage or, as in one production, changing Violetta’s illness to AIDS. In such cases, I cannot help but feel that the real dramatic truth of La Traviata has been sideswiped. Perhaps the idea of redemption doesn’t resonate with us as it did with Verdi’s audiences. But a great production of Traviata can still remind us of its power.

Brian Kellow is the author of biographies of Ethel Merman and Pauline Kael, and the most recent book, Can I Go Now?: The Life of Sue Mengers, Hollywood’s First Superagent.
Tell us about the first time you heard La Traviata.

My first experience with Verdi’s La Traviata was when I was around 20 years old. At that time I was very fond of La Bohème; every other opera seemed to me nothing in comparison. So, it took time for me to fall in love with this wonderful score, but when that happened, it was forever! The first time I conducted Traviata was in 1998 in Udine, Italy with the Orchestra and Chorus of the Teatro Grande di Trieste. There were no rehearsals; we went directly into the performance. It was a very exciting night for everyone, especially for me.

Why do we love La Traviata so much?

There are many reasons why this opera is so beloved. First, I think the music is extremely beautiful, and the story is still very moving. The fact that an “escort” decides to abandon that kind of life to have a normal one is still today something that, seen on stage, can create the catharsis that is so important when we go to attend a performance. Everyone who has made mistakes in his or her own life would like to be forgiven and have the opportunity to start over. Violetta is taken by death in the precise moment that everyone—including those in the audience—realize she deserves a new life.

It’s been said that for the soprano singing Violetta, she must be a coloratura for the first act of Traviata, a lyric soprano for the second act, and a dramatic soprano for the final act. Is any of this true? How would you personally describe the music?

What are your favorite musical moments in Traviata?

The music of this immense masterpiece is unbelievably gorgeous and appropriate in every moment. It is written in a way that, after a while, you forget that the people are playing and singing, and everything becomes more than real. In fact it becomes absolutely true, more than life itself.

As to a favorite moment, I can’t make any particular choice. I am completely involved emotionally and musically with every single note of this eternal and glorious Music.

Unfortunately for the soprano, it is true! Finding the perfect Violetta is almost impossible. She should be a light coloratura soprano in the first act, because her way of thinking in the beginning is light and superficial. In the second act she is a changed woman that tries to find herself in a new, calm, and peaceful life with Alfredo. In the third act she loses all hope for life and humanity. Verdi changes the music again for her, and this is why we need a more dramatic soprano instead. As everyone can see, singing this role is really demanding!

FLOWER GIRLS

Violetta, Marguerite, Camille, and Julia Roberts’ Pretty Woman all stem from the same source: the 19th-century Parisian courtesan Marie Duplessis.

Greta Garbo in the title role of the 1936 George Cukor film Camille.
Paris is corrupt to the core,” Charles Dickens huffed when he visited the French capital in February 1847. “For a number of days every question—political, artistic, and commercial—had been neglected by the newspapers. Everything is wiped out by an event of the highest importance, the romantic death of one of those glories of the demi-monde, the celebrated Marie Duplessis. You would have thought it was a question of the death of a hero or a Joan of Arc.” Dickens’ familiar brand of English puritan morality momentarily blinded the writer in him to what might be worthy of serious literature in the preposterously premature death of an unusually magnetic society-woman, no doubt because he could dismiss Duplessis as a mere prostitute. That she had been among the elite of her world cut no moral ice for him.

One of her recent French lovers, however, had no such scruples. Alexandre Dumas fils was an aspiring young writer laboring in the shadow of the vastly famous writer-father whose name he shared, author of The Three Musketeers and The Count of Monte Cristo. Dumas père, moreover, may himself have been one of Marie Duplessis’ passing lovers. For some 11 months in 1844-45, Duplessis had favored the younger Dumas, who was neither rich nor famous, over (sometimes as well as) the crowd of wealthy men-about-town for whom she was by common consent one of the most desirable prizes a top Parisian society-male could aim at. Four months after she died, the 23-year-old Dumas—the same age as Marie—began his romanticized account of their affair. The book took him four weeks to write and was his first literary success. It was published in 1848 as La Dame aux Camélias, the sobriquet by which staff at the Paris Opéra had supposedly referred to Marie, who had her own box at the opera house and habitually arrived carrying a great bunch of the flowers that eventually gave her her best-known literary name.

The book’s success was such that Dumas was quickly persuaded to produce a stage version, but three years had to pass before it could be shown publicly. Parisian, and indeed all European society was changing. Dickens had used (and perhaps coined) the right phrase for the curious phenomenon of the mid-19th-century Parisian courtesans: theirs was indeed a demi-monde, a half-world filled with life and glamor, but private, a world not to be mentioned in public, least of all in the popular theaters to which respectable families took their well-brought up daughters. The luxury of the high-level courtesans’ world, where young women like Marie Duplessis held court in grand town mansions, began to crumble as the revolutions of 1848 convulsed Europe. The hidden half-world had been short-lived, no more than a quarter of a century at its height. The women who, like Marie, rose to its level had invariably begun life in poverty, and were often barely if at all educated. Those whose beauty was allied with wit, however, could with a strong mixture of luck and talent lift themselves from the crowd of grisettes and lorettes that were the virtually inevitable destiny of young women who were unable to follow the acceptable route of marriage, the route which Dumas, for one, was already describing as no more than “legitimized prostitution.”
Marie’s case was typical: the illiterate daughter of a Normandy peasant, whose family could not afford her, she may have been sold as a 12-year-old to her father’s clients and friends. At 15, she had a child, quickly given away for adoption. But her rare grace, darker, taller, and slighter than convention expected, was linked to an unusually sharp intelligence. By the time she was 18 she had been the mistress of first one, then another Parisian aristocrat. Unlike the thousands of women whose lives were hidden and destroyed in the murky depths of the Paris sex-markets, Marie was already a celebrity. Born Alphonsine Rose Plessis, she had renamed herself Marie and prefixed the pseudo-noble “du” to her surname. She must have been a truly unusual person: her lovers included the composer Franz Liszt. “She was the first woman I ever loved,” Liszt wrote to Marie d’Agoult when Duplessis died. “Hers was truly an exquisite nature, and what is generally (perhaps accurately) described as corruption, never touched her heart.”

The radical changes in Parisian society-life after 1848 fast eroded most of Marie’s demi-monde. Ironically, the changes allowed her world to take on its later public role. Within three years, the sensational Dumas roman was on the Paris stage as his no less sentimentally successful play. This was the form in which Verdi encountered it. He may even have been at the premiere on February 2, 1852 at the Paris Théâtre du Vaudeville. The first performance of the opera which he derived from the play—called Love and Death (Amore e Morte) at first and only as it neared completion La Traviata, “the one who went astray”—took place barely a year later on March 6, 1853 at Venice’s La Fenice. It was one of the first operas to break with the iron tradition that only humorous works could deal with contemporary subjects.

The power of Verdi’s music is the most obvious cause of the Lady of the Camellias’ endurance. But longevity of this kind is determined by more than its incarnation as a supreme operatic drama. The Dumas play and the book before it were already landmarks in a slow transformation of social attitudes and sympathies. The play, it is true, is rarely staged now, but for generations it was a vehicle for the most celebrated actresses of the time—Sarah Bernhardt, Eleonora Duse, and Edwige Feuillère are but three of the names made familiar across the world through their identification with the sad Dumas heroine. The original book is still read and well worth reading. Frederick Ashton created a ballet, Marguerite and Armand, in 1963 for Margot Fonteyn and Rudolf Nureyev, and the American choreographer John Neumeier made his own version in Stuttgart for Maria Haydée 15 years later.

It is in film that the Dumas tragedy has had its most varied existence. Cinematically, Marie is best known as Camille, from the title of the 1936 George Cukor film with Greta Garbo, though Camille was already the name of an American film by Albert Capellani in 1915 with Clara Kimball playing the title role. (The floral sub-text is not incidental. Dumas called his title heroine Marguerite, the French word for daisy; Verdi and his librettist Francesco Maria Piave italianized her to Violetta, echoing not only the name of another flower but also the image of violation.) Violetta-Marie-Marguerite-Camille’s fate has not lost its power: it is still used to evoke sympathy in surroundings pretty far from Dumas and Verdi: remember Richard Gere testing Julia Roberts’ sensitivity in Garry Marshall’s 1990 film Pretty Woman by taking her to San Francisco to Traviata; or the delicious Australian movie The Adventures of Priscilla, Queen of the Desert four years later, with a drag-queen miming “È strano” to Joan Carden’s voice?

Emotionally evocative as these strains may be, the story nonetheless poses for many people a fundamental question of credibility, especially in Verdi’s operatic version: the central motivating event is a sequence of actions so far distanced from present-day social conventions. But as long as there has been writing from male-dominated, pre-contraceptive history, there have been stories revolving for better or usually worse around “immoral” women, women who fail to conform to the sexual behavior that would preserve male possession and/or the certainty of paternity. Is then the force of Verdi’s opera now no more than a sentimental historical curiosity? Certainly Giorgio Germont’s atrocious moralizing might be thought an insuperable obstacle to La Traviata’s emotional impact. But it is not so, though we may wish it were: rejection of the partners chosen by one’s children is certainly not out-of-date.

Art has a way of making us accept its invented world even when that world is entirely fantastic; as long as it continues we believe in it, warts and all. So any particular incredibility at the turning-point in Dumas-Verdi is in this sense irrelevant: Violetta, like any good artistic creation, lives in her own world, opera’s own fantasy demi-monde, but she is more than a character in that make-believe republic of localized truths. Art on this level stands for greater issues than its immediate subject, and La Traviata appalls and delights because there remain in society groups and individuals who we can feel are unjustly alienated, scorned, or rejected: every one of us may belong at some point in our lives to one or more of these categories. Violetta stands for them all. No matter the Camellia-Lady has recurred in so many guises. Small wonder, too, that so many of those transformations have been in another half-world: film, the most forceful artistic instrument for social change of the past 100 years, just as literature and opera were for the preceding century.

Christopher Hunt was a former artistic administrator with San Francisco Opera. This essay was published in a previous edition of San Francisco Opera Magazine.
NICOLA LUISOTTI
(Viareggio, Italy)
Conductor
Maestro Luisotti has been music director of San Francisco Opera since 2009 and has conducted over 40 operas and concerts since his Company debut in 2005. Luisotti, who holds the Caroline H. Hume Endowed Chair, recently conducted the Company’s Turandot, Rigoletto, Aida, Andrea Chénier, and Don Carlo. Last season, he led Pagliacci at Teatro Regio di Torino, and La Traviata at the Metropolitan Opera, as well as conducting the Metropolitan Opera National Council Grand Finals Concert. Other recent engagements include a symphonic concert at Amsterdam’s Concertgebouw, Rigoletto at Madrid’s Teatro Real and Milan’s Teatro alla Scala, Il Trittico and La Traviata at London’s Royal Opera, Covent Garden, and Rigoletto at Paris’ Opéra Bastille. In addition, Luisotti has received international acclaim from press and public alike with performances at Vienna State Opera, Genoa’s Teatro Carlo Felice, Venice’s La Fenice, Bologna’s Teatro Comunale, Munich’s Bavarian State Opera, Frankfurt, Stuttgart, Dresden, Hamburg, Valencia, Los Angeles Opera, Seattle Opera, and Tokyo’s Suntory Hall. He was recently appointed associate director at Madrid’s Teatro Real. Later this season, he returns to the Metropolitan Opera to lead performances of Cavalleria Rusticana and Pagliacci, as well as a new production of Aida at Madrid’s Teatro Real, a concert with Teatro Regio di Torino, and La Bohème and Falstaff at London’s Royal Opera, Covent Garden. In December, Luisotti will conduct the Richard Tucker Music Foundation Gala Concert at Carnegie Hall.

AURELIA FLORIAN
(Brașov, Romania)
Violetta Valéry
Making her U.S. debut as Violetta Valéry in La Traviata, soprano Aurelia Florian premiered the role in 2013 at the Deutsche Oper Berlin, and has since performed it to wide acclaim at the Bavarian State Opera in Munich, New Israeli Opera in Tel Aviv, Den Norske Opera in Oslo, Zurich Opera, and the Savonlinna Festival in Finland. Born and trained in her native Romania, Florian began her professional career with the Romanian National Opera in Bucharest from 2008 through 2010. Particularly in demand for her Verdi and Puccini roles, she includes in her repertoire Magda in La Rondine, the title role of Luisa Miller, Mimi in La Bohème, Lida in La Battaglia di Legnano, Amalia in I Masnadieri, Juliette in Roméo et Juliette, and Marguerite in Faust (the latter of which she performed last season with New Israeli Opera). Later this year, Florian makes her house and role debut as Leonora in Il Trovatore at the Aalto Theater in Essen and returns to Den Norske Opera as Violetta.

ATALLA AYAN
(Belem, Brazil)
Alfredo Germont
Making his San Francisco Opera debut as Alfredo Germont in La Traviata, Atalla Ayan has quickly established himself as one of the most sought-after tenors of his generation. A member of the Stuttgart Opera since 2012, Ayan has been equally well received at major international houses, including the Metropolitan Opera (in the roles of Alfredo and Christian in Cyrano de Bergerac); Royal Opera House, Covent Garden (Alfredo, Ruggero in La Rondine, and Don Ottavio in Don Giovanni); Teatro alla Scala (Nemorino in L’Elisir d’Amore); the Bavarian State Opera in Munich (Nemorino); and Deutsche Oper Berlin (Rodolfo in La Bohème). Recent engagements include Alfredo at the Glyndebourne Festival, Rodolfo at the Cologne Opera, and the title role of Faust at Stuttgart Opera. Later this season, Ayan makes his debut at Paris’ Opéra Bastille as Rodolfo and his role debut as Des Grieux in Manon at the Cologne Opera. He also returns to Stuttgart as Faust and to Covent Garden as Rodolfo.

Your selected contribution amount will be automatically charged to your credit or debit card each month for as long as you wish to participate. Best of all, you’ll receive membership benefits at a level equal to 12 months of recurring gifts, starting the day you sign up.

To join our monthly giving program visit sfopera.com/monthlygiving or call (415) 565-3212.
San Francisco Opera extends its deepest appreciation to all individual contributors. Our donors’ generosity is the primary source of annual support for the Company’s productions, educational programs, and operations. Leadership Circle, Medallion Society, and San Francisco Opera Members enjoy a variety of special benefits, including priority seating, personalized ticket service, behind-the-scenes access, and more. To learn more about supporting San Francisco Opera, contact our Development Department at (415) 565-6401.

Listed gifts were received between August 1, 2016 and August 31, 2017. We have made every effort to ensure the accuracy of our donor listings. If we have misspelled or omitted a name, please accept our apology and notify us at (415) 565-6401 so that we may update our records accordingly.

Friends of Education

We invite you to become engaged in the many facets of San Francisco Opera Education, including school partnerships, family activities, and adult programs. Your gift—at any level—will help the Company provide opera education for all ages throughout the Bay Area and invite the community to join us for innovative programs at the new Wilsie Center for Opera.

For more information on becoming a Friend of Education and supporting these vital programs, please call (415) 551-6244 or visit sfopera.com/FriendsofEducation.

Donate Your Car!

Have an old car taking up space in your driveway? Consider donating it to San Francisco Opera! We accept all types of vehicles and can pick them up when it’s most convenient for you. Your tax-deductible donation will support thrilling productions, immersive education programs, free community events and more.

Visit sfopera.careasy.org or call 855-99-OPERA to learn more.
The following patrons have made a legacy commitment to San Francisco Opera Association and have joined the Bel Canto Legacy Society as of August 31, 2017. Their generosity helps support our long-range financial stability and artistic planning. Please consider joining this extraordinary group.

Thank You!

I want to express my personal gratitude to each of you for your support of San Francisco Opera. Like you, I have included the Opera in my estate plan because I love this Company and believe in what it is doing. From educating young audiences, to training the singers of tomorrow, to presenting world-class productions, San Francisco Opera plays a major role on the international stage.

I have been associated with the Company since 1960, and I feel privileged to have been part of its history, and a part of its future, as well. Thank you for joining me as Bel Canto Legacy Society members.

Celebrating the arts

Proud to be the Official Airline of the San Francisco Opera.
fly the friendly skies®
THE MEROLA OPERA PROGRAM is dedicated to the continuing education and professional training of the finest young operatic talent and the development of this talent into professional opera singers, coaches, and stage directors of the highest artistic caliber. Merola operates in close artistic collaboration with San Francisco Opera but is an independent nonprofit organization, governed by a separate board of directors. Merola is responsible for its own fundraising, primarily from loyal members and foundations.

Young artists participating in Merola’s intensive training program benefit from its association with San Francisco Opera, often returning to appear on the main stage. In any given season, over 30% of all San Francisco Opera roles, including cover roles, are performed by former Merola artists. Graduates of the Merola Opera Program include Joyce DiDonato, Susan Graham, Thomas Hampson, Anna Netrebko, Patricia Racette, John Relyea, Patrick Summers, Ruth Ann Swenson, Carol Vaness, Rolando Villazón, Deborah Voigt, and Dolores Zajic. Merola is the future of opera. Please visit us at merola.org.

More than 75,000 Bay Area families, students and teachers experience the excitement of opera with a variety of educational and community engagement programs presented through the combined efforts of San Francisco Opera, San Francisco Opera Guild, and the Merola Opera Program.
FIRST-YEAR REFLECTIONS

There is an old quip that “life is short; opera is long; Wagner is eternal.” Opera time is certainly an odd phenomenon. On the one hand, we can bring time to a halt through achingly beautiful artistry in which we lose ourselves for hours as the world buzzes around us. On the other hand, we are one of the most tightly scheduled enterprises known to mankind. Everything happens in precise order and is often planned years into the future. I can tell you exactly what I’ll be doing at 6 p.m. on June 5, 2020. (It’s a piano technical rehearsal for the (R)evolution of Steve Jobs.) This duality of opera time makes reflecting on a year in this business an intriguing phenomenon.

Although I’ve been working here since 2005, this first year as your general director has been an incredible opportunity to see the Company from a new vantage point. I thought it might be interesting to share a few of my first-year observations with you.

1. The breadth of talent here is phenomenal. I knew from the moment I set foot in this building in 2002 that San Francisco Opera is capable of extraordinary art. One of the greatest privileges of the past year has been spending time with all the areas of the Company, understanding even more the dedication and talents creating that extraordinary art.

2. Programming is emotionally charged. As we work to design future seasons, I realize increasingly the emotional bond that comes when you are putting together a cast and creative team. There are so many pieces to come together that when it works it is elating, and when something goes awry, it is heartbreaking.

3. This city is an incredible opportunity. As I’ve had more interactions with other arts organizations, as we worked through Prop. S last year, and as we think strategically about our place within our broader community, I am increasingly in awe of the unique moment in which we exist. Today’s Bay Area is one of the most fertile moments of possibility in world history, and we’re at the nexus of that vitality. That’s a very exciting reality to seize!

4. Our assumptions need to change. It used to be that if you performed title x with singer y you could expect an audience of z. Nationwide that predictability has eroded in the past five years. Our assumptions need to change, and change quickly as we work to understand the dynamically changing region around us.

5. You have to show up if you want a place at the table. I’ve had the chance to travel to other companies, including European festivals, this year. This has been a chance to meet other general directors, talk about shared programming aspirations, and explore intriguing collaborative ideas. Through these interactions, you realize there’s no substitute for a face-to-face relationship. This is the time when we’re building our next generation of global partners, and it’s a very exciting process.

6. The greatest positivity comes from patron conversations. Being in this role gives one wonderful time with patrons, subscribers, and donors, and there is an exhilarating, positive energy that comes from those conversations. The level of dedication people have to San Francisco Opera is manifested in an inspiring passion and care for the art form. As we think about future programming, there is no greater creative spark plug than the energy of our audience.

As I move into my second year, I am so grateful for the kindness, support, and trust that this company and community have given me. I think this will always be a “pinch-me-it-can’t-be-real” job. The chance to work with you all in the creative arc of opera, from conception to creation to experience, is a thrillingly exciting one. I am committed to listening, learning, refining, and propelling this company forward towards our second century. It’s a privilege to be on this journey with you. 🌠
Performance Etiquette

- Please turn off and refrain from using all electronic devices before the performance, including digital watches and cell phones.
- No cameras or recording equipment are permitted in the Opera House.
- As a courtesy to those who may have fragrance allergies, please avoid wearing perfume or cologne.
- Children of any age attending a performance must have a ticket; no babes in arms.

Management reserves the right to remove any patron creating a disturbance.

San Francisco Opera, San Francisco Ballet, and the San Francisco Symphony are experimenting with allowing audiences to enjoy beverages in the auditorium.

You may bring drinks purchased in the Opera House into the auditorium, as long as they are in the approved compostable cup with a lid, which is available at all bars.

also served before performances and during intermissions at Patina’s Café Express (Lower level) and Dress Circle Café. Call (415) 861-8150 or visit operatube.com for reservations or to pre-order. Patrons dining in the Opera House may enter through the North Carriage entrance (adjacent to the War Memorial courtyard) up to two hours prior to curtain.

The SAN FRANCISCO OPERA SHOP, located on the South Mezzanine level of the Opera House, sells opera CDs, DVDs, SF Opera merchandise, and gift items. The Shop is open 90 minutes before performances, at intermissions, and afterward. All proceeds benefit San Francisco Opera.

COAT CHECK For the safety and comfort of our audience, all large parcels, backpacks, luggage, etc. must be checked at the Opera House coat check, located at the North and South ends of the Main Lobby.

COURTESY TELEPHONE, for local calls only, is located in the main lobby across from the South passenger elevator.

DRINKING FOUNTAINS are available on all levels except the Lower level, where there is a courtesy water station on the north side. Water bottles are permitted in the auditorium.

OPERA GLASSES may be rented for $5 at the North Lobby coat check. ID deposit is requested.

LARGE PRINT CAST SHEETS AND SYNOPSES are available at the coat check stations in the main lobby.

FIRST AID STATION is located on the South Lower level. In case of emergency, please ask the nearest usher to assist you.

LOST AND FOUND items may be claimed at the North coat check during the performance. All unclaimed items are delivered to the War Memorial Performing Arts Center at 401 Van Ness Ave., Room 110, (415) 621-6600 (8 AM–5 PM, Monday–Friday).

TAXI SERVICE Patrons desiring a taxi after a performance should come to the Grove Street Taxi Ramp located on the south side of the Opera House. Accommodations are provided on a first come, first served basis, and cannot be guaranteed as service is based on availability of licensed taxis. Staff will be on hand to assist.
